

MARRIAGE EDUCATION AND RESOURCE CENTER

October, 2020 The Marriage Education and Resource Center (MERCY)

During one of our first meetings with a couple, the husband asked, "What do we do when we have tried everything and the marriage is still not working?"

I (Penny) don't know where it came from, but I said, "It is a heart thing. You have to change your hearts." I don't think either of them said anything and afterwards I felt I had probably offended them. I felt so badly. I didn't want to drive them away and I remember David and I talking about it and me telling him I hope I didn't hurt their feelings and they probably would never come back. That has been several years ago and we are still friends with this couple. And while at the time I didn't recognize it, it had to be the Holy Spirit prompting me to speak those words. I now realize how true it is. It's all about the Lord changing hearts and He is the only one who can do that.

What To Do When You Feel Disconnected From Your Spouse

Sometimes the culprit is busy schedules that have you going in different directions. Sometimes your spouse might be in a funk or preoccupied with a project at work. Maybe you had a spat. Feeling disconnected occasionally is totally normal. Marriage has ups and downs and peaks and valleys. Don't sweat this, but be proactive. You've noticed it—let's do something about it!
